

A Tale of Two Hotels

A Tale of Two Hotels An exciting finale to Elizabeth Cooke's small hotel series about the Hotel Marcel in Paris is presented in this, the fourth book, A Tale of Two Hotels. Following There's a Small Hotel, Secrets of a Small Hotel, and The Hotel Next Door, A Tale of Two Hotels involves a duel between two hostelrys, one simple and diminutive, the other, large and grandiose, side by side on a Parisian avenue. Trouble is compounded when a sheikh's beautiful daughter sheds her burka. All manner of mischief ensues. Other passions, adultery, a wedding, even attempted arson, take place in the City of Light in the month of May, much to the fascination of the narrator, an American widow in her 60s.
