

The Happy Lawyer: How to Gain More Satisfaction, Suffer Less Stress, and Enjoy Higher Earnings in Your Law Practice

Many practicing lawyers are in a state of misery. America has nearly one million lawyers. One of three lawyers reports being dissatisfied with his or her working life. A majority complain of too little time for themselves or their families. Lawyers are four times as likely as the general population to suffer from depression, the highest incidence found among 105 occupations. Out of all the clients they work for or the matters they work on, lawyers reportedly either dislike or barely tolerate some 70% to 80%. Sole practitioners wonder where the next engagement will come from, find that time off comes at the price of an interruption of income, and are among the least satisfied. The Happy Lawyer presents simple principles to enable lawyers to increase happiness. The Seeds of Satisfaction Are in Every Lawyers Practice. How to discover the core of a law practice that serves highest aspirations and values. How to choose the right clients, whose work will bring satisfaction and fulfill professional goals. Focusing on an Arena of Preeminence. How to develop a niche to distinguish oneself from the mass of generic legal service providers. How to dominate that market. How Create A Plan to Take Control. How to increase free time. How to work only with clients and spend most professional time in that niche. Why clients will happily pay higher fees. How to Attract the Ideal Clients. Developing a Practice Purpose. Communicating that Purpose with a spoken logo. How to use highly professional marketing techniques. How to obtain qualified referrals systematically. Building Trust Through Breakthrough Communications. Distinguishing a practice with trusting relationships with clients using higher levels of communication. How to create a bond based on clients values. How to work with the client to create the Success Solution.

The Happy Lawyers Practice. How telescoping time of the lawyer increases both productivity and time off.
