

Reffing Hell!

Bernard Bernie Rutherford was brought up to believe that his life was already mapped out before him and that there was little that he could do, no talent that he possessed, to help him escape from his own predetermined fate. After suffering at the hands of bullies at school and also his own brother and father, who ridicule him for being poor at sports, Bernie finds himself teetering on the brink of total despair. Then, from out of the blue and with origins that come from a rather unexpected source, Bernie has a eureka moment. Bernie realises what it is that he has been put on this earth to do, and that thing is, referee football matches. Power, control, respect and authority are all things that Bernie has craved, and after spotting the way that he may be able to achieve all of those things, he sets about attaining what he wants. Bernie has no interest in being a second rate, lower league referee, either. Its either the very top, or bust. Things are never very simple where Bernie Rutherford is concerned, however, and after acquiring a secret drink and drug habit, that he thinks that he is in complete control over, while making up for lost time and partying just that little bit too hard, Bernie makes a terrible mistake while on a night out. It is a mistake that will unquestionably alter the course of his life and, as he attempts to pick up the pieces, it dawns on him that his world may never be quite the same again.
