

Mayan Horror: How to Survive the End of the World in 2012

Literary Nonfiction. Humor. Christmas gift pick, Star-Phoenix. When the Mayan Calendar runs out on December 21st, 2012, all manner of possible disasters will befall the earth, from a collision with a rogue planet, to biblical flooding, to being attacked by swarms of gnats. But just because life as we know it will come to an end, it doesn't mean you can't survive and even prosper financially in the post-apocalyptic world. Bob Robertson's MAYAN HORROR: HOW TO SURVIVE THE END OF THE WORLD IN 2012 gives you all the vital information you'll need to come through smiling after Armageddon wreaks havoc on the planet. Twice as funny as... anything written... by Peter C. Newman. Yeuda Mann, Markham Weekly Auto Trader refreshing... this book fairly dances along at a pace that keeps the reader quickly turning the page while, at the same time, looking forward to turning the next page. Richard Trickle, Sparwood Weekly Sheet Mayan Horror... not only explains what might happen when the Mayan Calendar ends but... is so good that... you start salivating at the thought of being consumed by a giant ball of fire, or eaten alive by a swarm of gnats, or even flattened by a falling Winnebago.
