

Three reflections of Cherry Blossoms

This book is a collaboration between three artists working in vastly different mediums, brought together by the interconnectedness that today's world facilitates and the friendship and cooperation of many other human points of light, from Japan to Canada to the United States and many more places in between. The work is both local and global, timeless and prudent, hurting and healing, old and new, young and old. The poet, the philosopher, and the visual artist have come together on the most common of grounds, in the artistic moments that lift us out of our mortal cycles and physical environments and into the colorful spaces that transcend our individual lives, our times, our fears, pain, and morality.
